ATLANTIC COAST MIGRATORY FARM WORKERS

Housing in Government-operated camps:

South Carolina
North Carolina
Virginia

Space is now being allotted to workers who have work agreements.

There is not room in the Government farm labor camps for people who do not work in the areas. You must, therefore, arrange for work before you ask for space in the camps. The Extension Service men listed below will help you.

If you already have a job and have to depend on a Government camp for shelter, write the Extension Service man and ask him to help you. Give him the name and address of your employer, tell him how many there are in your group, and when you expect to arrive. He will apply for shelter and will let you know whether or not there is room for you. It may be necessary for him to find room for you somewhere else.

If you do not have a job or housing, write the Extension Service man the size of your group, the kind of work you want and when you can come. Perhaps he can place you. If the housing in the area is all taken, or if there is no work available, he will notify you.

The wise worker will arrange for both housing and work before he leaves home. The men listed below will help you. See the map of the Atlantic Coast Migration for the areas each handles.
